SIGHTSEEING

The Lodge at Edgewood Tahoe's cozy great room looks out onto glittering Lake Tahoe.

MOUNTAIN MAJESTY

A new property in South Lake Tahoe ups the ante for sexy ski getaways.

When skiing world-class slopes, you don't expect to see blue. It's mostly white, with green treetops spattered about. But in Lake Tahoe, you swoosh down runs overlooking one of the deepest cobalt hues imaginable. A large freshwater pool in the Sierra Nevada is the backdrop for those staying at The Lodge at Edgewood Tahoe, a $100 million LEED-designed lakefront property that opened June 2017. With 154 guest rooms, an expansive spa and a bistro-style restaurant with views of the water, it will keep your après-ski game on point. If you're not noshing on a rack of spring lamb in the dining room, ogle artwork representing Native American history of the area. Premier rooms from $400 per night, edgewoodtahoe.com —Misty Milioto
