Twin Farms, Vermont

Fall in Los Angeles looks a lot different from much of the rest of the country. We delight in ongoing warm days well into Halloween celebrations and tend to find autumn magic in seasonally-themed candles and pumpkin spice lattes. And while we love our SoCal fall rituals, sometimes we need more. There's nothing like partaking in leaf peeping amidst cooling temperatures while sipping hot cider. To get you're proper fall-time fix, we've rounded up the best places to visit.

Look out toward the still blue South Lake Tahoe waters, perfectly reflecting the soaring Sierra Mountain Range from the comfort of Edgewood Tahoe. The resort has curated fall experiences for guests looking for a festive getaway. Make memories of the Chocolate Caramel Apple Pops and Build-Your-Own Trail Mix workshops, see your future with tarot card reading and enjoy a late night s'more around the fire. Immerse yourself in the changing colors of nature and come back to treat yourself with the signature gemstone massage at Spa Edgewood.
